KIEV FIGHTING CLAIM
OF RUSSIAN OFFICERS*Battle Line Drawn Fourteen Miles East of That City.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, May 18.—Successes against the Poles in the fighting on the northern part of the front are reported by the Russian soviet government in an official message from Moscow, dated Monday. The Poles were forced back over the Beresina at one point, it is claimed.

Fighting is still in progress in the Kiev region, with the battle line drawn some 14 miles to the east of the city, according to the statement which says:

"In the Kiev region, on the left bank of the Dnieper, fighting is proceeding fourteen miles northeast and southeast of Kiev.

"In the Shobin and Mozir directions, our troops, having started a counter advance in the vicinity of the railway, flung back the enemy to the right bank of the Beresina.

"In the region of Cherkassy our advancing troops captured a number of villages on the right bank of the Dnieper from 24 to 27 miles northwest of Cherkassy."

TO RECOGNIZE SIBERIA.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Moscow, May 18.—Recognition of the Far Eastern democratic republic of Siberia has been decided upon by the Russian soviet government. A note to this effect will be sent to the minister of foreign affairs of the new republic. Diplomatic relations between the soviet government and the Far Eastern republic will be opened immediately.

Negotiations between the far eastern republic and Japan will continue but as many questions at issue also concern soviet Russia it is probable the negotiations will take the form of a triple conference.

Mr. Krasnozholtz, the minister of foreign affairs is regarded as the strongest man in the Far Eastern republic and was formerly a lawyer of Chicago. He was identified with the American Labor movement for several years and recently has been president of the executive committee at Khabarovsk.

ZIONISTS ARRESTED.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Moscow, May 16.—Seventy-five delegates and alternates to the all-Russian Zionist congress which met here late in April have been arrested according to a statement by the extraordinary commission today.

It is asserted that the secrecy observed regarding the meeting and the fact that a large proportion of those present were not connected with the Zionist movement led to the arrests.

Investigation, it is alleged, has resulted in the discovery of compromising documents, and that the existence of a courier service between Russia and London has been shown. Charges are made that bombs have been found in the office of the central Zionist committee.

It is claimed that 80,000 Jewish legionaries in Palestine have pledged support to the entente and that Henry Morgenthau, former American ambassador to Turkey, visited Poland last fall as a representative of the Zionists. It is said on the occasion he urged the Jewish population to submit to the Polish imperialists.

American Zionists are charged, unused financial support to Admiral Koltchak while Jewish troops, it is alleged, were used by England against the Egyptian nationalists and on the Archangel and Odessa fronts in Russia.

Reports by the Zionists of pogroms in Soviet Russia are cited as part of their propaganda. It is declared the soviet government is not opposed to the legitimate Zionists activities, but the abuse of privileges by that party has forced the government to take drastic action.

LITTLE CHANCE OF M. E. UNION
AT THIS TIME*Conference Committee is Not Hopeful Merger Can Come.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Des Moines, Ia., May 18.—Adoption of the plan of unification with the Methodist church, South, by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session is a very remote possibility according to the sentiment of many delegates today.

For almost two weeks a special committee has been considering the report of the commission on unification which presented the regional plan without recommendation. This special committee has considered every phase of the report and although a formal vote has not been taken is almost unanimously of the opinion that it will be impossible to adopt the present plan without many amendments which in effect would create a new plan.

The special committee appointed a sub-committee of eleven, charged with the duty of formulating a plan which would further the interests of eventual unification. This sub-committee will submit a plan which according to Bishop John W. Hamilton, its chairman, would lead the churches involved to a vote for unification. The report, it is understood, strongly reaffirms the desire of the Methodist Episcopal church for union but recommends the creation of a new commission on unification by each church in order to arrive at a complete understanding as to all details involved.

C. W. Burns, of Minneapolis, was elected a bishop on the ballot taken late yesterday at the general conference and result of which was announced today. His vote was 552.

The conference went on record today as recommending to the federal government and the several state governments vigorous and strict enforcement of the present laws against and enactment of more stringent laws to prevent lynchings.

IMMIGRATION LAWS
SHOULD BE CHANGED TO ADMIT LABORERS

SEN. EDGE

America Sorely in Need of Common Workers,
He Declares.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, May 18.—Temporary modification of the immigration laws to permit an influx of desirable immigrants to meet America's labor shortage was urged today by United States Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey addressing the National Manufacturers Association. He also advocated Americanization to prevent new immigrants from falling under the spell of Bolshevism.

Quoting Commissioner of Immigration Carmichael that the radicals have "a wonderful organization for capturing each immigrant, almost at the moment of landing, and bringing him under their influences," the senator said that less than six weeks is needed to prepare "his mind for welcome reception of Communist doctrines."

In urging modification of the immigration laws, the senator said he did not mean to "open the doors to an indiscriminate horde of new comers."

"Moreover, against such undesirable," he added, "who may filter through I would apply every law for deportation without the tenderness apparently shown for radicals and Bolsheviks by officials of the administration."

U. S. Needs Labor

America needs common labor, Senator Edge declared, adding that "industries of all kinds are handicapped and in some instances almost crippled" by the shortage of workers.

"The main barrier at this time is the 'literacy test,' the 'head tax,' should not be prohibitive and possibly might be retained in order to make the immigrant feel that he was obtaining a privilege worth paying for," he said.

"There need be no fear of immigrant labor lowering the American wage scales," Senator Edge asserted, adding that "it seems more likely that these new comers quickly will be enlisted in the ranks of those who periodically demand higher wages."

The senator urged the repeal of class legislation.

"The laws of the United States apply, without distinction," he said, "to all the people of the United States and no group or class should be exempt merely because it calls itself a union or a grange or a sodality or a congregation."

PENROSE ORIGINATOR OF CHARGES AGAINST
NAVY DANIELS STATES*Says Admiral Sims is a Plagiarist—Used Senator's Words

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, May 18.—Senator Penrose, Republican, Pennsylvania, and not Rear Admiral Sims originated the basic charges against the navy department contained in the admiral's letter of Jan. 7, Secretary Daniels asserted today before the senate committee investigating the naval conduct of the war. Mr. Daniels recalled that the senator in a speech in the senate Aug. 24, 1918 declared that procrastination on the part of the secretary delayed the termination of the war at least $15,000,000,000 and many lives.

The words used by Senator Penrose were almost identical with those used by Admiral Sims more than a year later, Mr. Daniels said.

Either Admiral Sims is plagiarist and appropriated his charges from Senator Penrose or by mental telepathy the views of the senator were communicated to Admiral Sims," declared Mr. Daniels. "Penrose comes from Pennsylvania and Sims was appointed to the naval academy from that state. Did they collaborate or exchange mental telegrams?"

The committee might have saved "thousands of reams of papers and hundreds of thousands of words" by investigating Penrose's charges, the witness said. Senator Penrose was "imposed upon by some informant almost as reckless in his figures as Admiral Sims was in his accusations," Mr. Daniels continued. "It is also worthy of note" he said, "that at the very time Penrose was making this speech Sims was writing to Captain Pratt threatening an investigation of the conduct of the war."

Mr. Daniels said he would not answer the Penrose charges at length, even though he had just learned of them but his answer to Admiral Sims covered the matter fully. He devoted the rest of the day to a resume of the navy department's war construction activities comprising approximately 1,000 vessels, nearly three times as many as there were in the entire navy when the war started. He paid high tribute to Rear Admiral David Taylor, chief constructor, who he said, had no superior in the world.

Socialists Petition
Baker to Release All Objectors from Prison

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, May 18.—A committee appointed by the Socialist party called on Secretary Baker today to ask for the release of conscientious objectors in prison. The delegation was headed by a woman, Elvina S. Beals of Berkeley, Cal.

Citing President Wilson's message to congress in November, 1918, saying "thus the war comes to an end," the memorial presented said that continued confinement of conscientious objectors "is manifestly unjust."

"The reasons for their confinement, if any there were, ceased one and a half years ago," it said. "These young men in an attempt to follow the dictates of their consciences refused to accept military service—many of them, because of religious scruples, all of them because of the dictates of their consciences."

"We are proud of the fact that freedom of conscience is a cardinal principle of American institutions. 'Hundreds of our conscientious objectors have since the armistice been released. It is unjust still to keep others in prison.'"

GOVT. COMPETITION TO REDUCE H. C. OF L.
SENATOR'S PROPOSAL*Walsh of Mass. Takes Rap
at "Robbers Infesting the Land"

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, May 18.—Profiteering was denounced today in the senate by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, who asserted that extortions of profiteers are the principal cause of unrest and that congress has been "culpably inactive" in moving to relieve the situation.

Senator Walsh cited many large dividends including stock dividends paid recently by big corporations and declared the public outcries against the high cost of living were an acute political problem.

Republican leaders in congress, he said, are responsible for failure to enact anti-profiteering legislation. The Republicans, he added, cannot shift the responsibility to the President or department heads. Recommendations made by Senator Walsh to check profiteering were:

Senatorial investigation of income tax returns to disclose individual profiteers.

Passage of several pending bills, including the baker-regulation measure, the McNary bill to stamp out prices on shoes, the cold storage regulation bill.

"I further recommend" said Senator Walsh, "that congress promptly inaugurate public trading on a large scale unless exorbitant profits are voluntarily and materially reduced at once. In other words I recommend government competition as a remedy."

Although the people were resigned to high prices during the war, he said, they now demand relief from "scandalous profit making."

"Conditions have grown worse," he said, "and it seems that a band of robbers infest the land. Combines and trusts, by tacit if not actual agreement, hold up their product for constantly increasing gain. The government except for insignificant threats, has not even attempted a solution."

Among instances of corporation profits cited by Senator Walsh were those of the "big five" packers as reported by the federal trade commission, and the American Woolen company.

Mr. Walsh asked: "Shall the people be forced to enroll in the Socialist party or to organize a third party which shall offer a candidate whose public record typifies opposition to profiteering and a platform which promises specific measures of relief?"

DIXON BOY TAKEN TO

Unhappy Experiences
in Metropolis.

Bert Woodyatt, 13 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Woodyatt, is on his way home from Chicago, where he went to take in the sights in a big city. Articles appearing in last evening's Chicago papers stated Bert was found crying in the rain at West Madison and Canal streets, near the Northwestern depot yesterday by an officer. The boy is said to have given Sterling as his home and told the police that while standing on the depot platform last Thursday, he was asked by a stranger if he wanted to go to Chicago. Bert said he did and the man purchased a ticket for him, took him to Freeport and then to Chicago. After arriving in Chicago, the boy was left to shift for himself, he told the officers.

According to information secured at the local police station, the boy left Dixon some time Saturday in company with a stranger, and who gave the name of Charles Lewis of Canton, Ohio, and who had been boarding at the E. L. Williams farm residence east of Dixon on the River road. He left his boarding place without giving any notice of his intention to leave Dixon, took his dinner pail and neglected to settle a board bill amounting to about eight dollars. He is said to have enticed the Woodyatt boy into leaving home and going to Chicago. When the matter was reported to the local officers a juvenile officer from Chicago was at the station and he took the case in charge. A telegram was received from this officer last evening, stating that the Woodyatt boy was in custody and was being held at the Juvenile Home, waiting word from Dixon. This morning transportation was sent and the boy is expected home today.

"Ed Perkins enlisted in Company E, 140th Illinois volunteers at Dixon. We were sworn into service at Camp Butler, near Springfield, and a regular army officer then took the Illinois Central going to Cairo. I was a corporal in his company. At Cairo we were placed on a big steamer and went down the Mississippi to Memphis, Tenn. We were then loaded into stock cars and hauled to Lafayette, Tenn."

"Ed was a good soldier and came back home with us and lived east of town with Andy Phalen's father."

The funeral will be held from the National Soldiers' home at Milwaukee tomorrow and the veteran will be laid to rest in the Home cemetery with military honors.

Corn Prices Struck Decline This Morn

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, May 18.—General selling of corn resulted today from declines in Liberty bonds, the failure of a Kansas bank and from belief that railroad labor difficulties would be settled shortly. The Kansas bank failure attracted special attention to reports that the collapse was due to burdened loans on wheat. Notice that the Chicago & Northwestern road had cancelled all restrictions against grain shipments to Chicago counted also as a bearish factor.

Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4 to 1 1/2 lower with July 1.75 1/4 to 1.76 and Sept. 1.62 1/4 to 1.63 were followed by a material further setback. Oats weakened with corn. After opening 1/4 to 1/2 lower, the market continued to slide.

Lower quotations on grain had a depressing effect in the provision market. Support was lacking. Subsequently assertions that radical steps to break the railway traffic jam would be taken quickly by the interstate commerce commission led to big additional tumbles in corn and so likewise did reports of industrial establishments laying off large number of employees. The close was semi-demoralized, 3/4 to 5/8 net lower, with July 1.69 1/4 to 1.70 and Sept. 1.60 1/4 to 1.61.

TO RESIDE ON THIRD ST.—

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Handell have taken up their residence at 812 West Third street.

ENTERTAINED PRESIDENT—

At a very largely attended meeting of circle members and comrades of Dixon Post, G. A. R., G. A. R. Circle entertained as its guest Mrs. Bertha J. Gasser, of Chicago, Department President of Illinois. During the evening Mrs. Gasser spoke in most complimentary terms of the good work of Dixon Circle and especially of the excellent ritualistic work. She also spoke favorably in behalf of Mrs. Geo. Cupp, candidate for the department presidency. She urged the attendance of all the delegates and Past Presidents at the Department Convention to be held at Joliet in June. At the close of the meeting ice cream and wafers were served and a very pleasant social time was enjoyed. Mrs. Gasser returned to Chicago this morning.

Y. W. M. S. HELD MEETING—

The Young Woman's Missionary society of St. Paul's Lutheran church held a meeting last evening at the church with thirty-two present. The lesson study, "Service in the Home Church," was conducted by Miss Lulu Baughman, assisted by other girls. Mrs. Morris Rosbrook told the story of "The girl who volunteered to stay at home." Miss Meriam Deviny and Miss Mabel Pearse sang a very pleasing duet. The hostesses, Misses Lulu Baughman, Esther Baughman, Katherine Gibson, and Helen White, served delicious refreshments.

GUILD'S CALICO BALL—

The young ladies of St. Margaret's Guild have completed the plans and decorations for the original and clever Calico and Overall ball to be given this evening at Rosbrook hall. There will be many interesting and lively features of the ball developed during the evening. Refreshments will be served by the ladies of St. Ann's Guild. This ball will be one of the important social events of the year.

QUILT DISPLAY—

A very beautiful quilt display will be shown tonight at the Calico ball at Rosbrook hall. Enough quilts have been secured to reach entirely around the hall. One very rare old quilt bears the date of 1832 and another contains the name of many Dixonites. Homemade rugs will also be on display and all the decorations are of the patchwork effect.

TO DIXON HOSPITAL

H. H. Fields of Rock Falls was admitted to the Dixon hospital Monday for treatment.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

If one is building a new house there are many little things that may be done at small cost while the carpenters are there to do it.

One of these things is having the small brass labelling cases put on drawers and shelves in storerooms and linen closets.

The advantage of these labels is that a stranger may find articles when needed and also put them away in their accustomed places. Every housekeeper knows the difficulty of trying to find things that have been put away by some one else.

If one doesn't care to go to the expense of buying the brass labels ordinary plain white cards may be neatly printed in ink and fastened to shelves and drawers with artist's tacks.

Menu For Tomorrow

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cooked cereal, nut rolls and butter, coffee.

Luncheon—Macaroni with tomato cheese sauce, steamed brown bread, orange marmalade, tea.

Dinner—Cream of onion soup, roast veal potatoes baked with meat, creamed asparagus, radishes, baked custard, crisp cookies, coffee.

My Own Recipes

Roasts are about the cheapest meat one can buy now. The clever management of left-overs is greatly appreciated by the family, however. It does seem to be up to the cook with vengeance these days. Successful left-over dishes mean an expenditure of time and thought, but are very much worth while.

Macaroni With Tomato Cheese Sauce

1 cup macaroni (broken in one-inch pieces).

2 tablespoons butter.

1 1/2 tablespoons flour

2 cups strained tomato juice

1/4 teaspoon soda.

1 1/2 cup chopped cheese

Salt

Pepper.

Cook macaroni in boiling water for 30 minutes. Melt butter, add flour and cook until smooth. Heat tomato juice to the boiling and add soda. Add slowly to butter and flour. Add cheese and cook until cheese is melted. Season with salt and pepper. Strain macaroni and bleach under cold running water. Put in a buttered baking dish, pour over sauce and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes.

Cream of Onion Soup

1/2 cup of diced celery

2 tablespoons minced parsley

1 cup sliced onion

4 tablespoons butter

1 tablespoon flour

3 cups flour.

1 egg

Salt and pepper.

Cook onion, celery and parsley in butter till vegetables are soft. Stir in flour, add milk and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Beat eggs slightly with 2 tablespoons cream. Strain soup

PICKING WILD FLOWERS

...The Society for the Protection of Native Plants sends out a little word of advice that should be heeded by people in this community, especially as regards Lowell Park and other public grounds. The leaflet says:

There is danger of extermination of many interesting and beautiful wild flowers through thoughtless and indiscriminate picking. Those flowers which are gathered for sale are in especial danger, as, when they become commercially valuable, they are gathered in great quantities. The only way of checking this is to refrain from buying.

It is hoped that the love of natural beauty which is encouraged in us by the nature books will lead us one step further, and induce us to pick few flowers instead of many, and to use moderation in breaking large branches of flowering shrubs, which will live in water but a few days, but represent the growth of many years.

This society urges that we all use

1. Moderation. Do not pick all that you find. Many flowers must be left to develop seeds for future plants.

2. Care. Never pull up the plants for the roots are of no use in a bunch of flowers, and their destruction means the extinction of the plant.
Cut when possible.

3. Judgment. Many flowers, such as wild roses, asters, and golden-rod, may be picked with impunity, but when flowers are few or rare do not pick them. Do not pick flowers which must die before you reach home, nor great quantities of those flowers whose grace and beauty are better seen in a few than in many massed together.

CONTRADICTIONS

Everyone has observed how frequently one maxim seems to contradict another. In this fashion.

"Look before you leap."

"He who hesitates is lost."

"Two heads are better than one."

"Too many cooks spoil the broth."

"Out of sight, out of mind."

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder."

"It is never too late to mend."

"As the twig is bent, the tree is inclined."

Does that mean that each maxim is false? Not at all. Each in its own time and place may be right. The whole truth is not so simple that it can be condensed into a single thought.

A dog may be truly a companionable fellow to his master, truly a nuisance to the master's wife, and truly a terror to the neighbor's cat.

The profiteering landlord, whose tenant's know him truly—know him to be avaricious and greedy, may be to his wife truly generous and unselfish.

Public men frequently become known for one or two traits. To realize how limited is this understanding of an individual, the reader has only to consider what are his own characteristic traits.

Perhaps he is frugal. Does that mean he never is extravagant?

Perhaps he is cautious. Does that mean he never acts impulsively?

Perhaps he is kind. Does that mean he never is unkind?

Each person is a complicated mixture of frequently conflicting traits and tendencies. That's true of the obscure. It is equally true of those who are conspicuous. Two voters

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

BEN BUNNY IN TROUBLE

After Ben Bunny had explained to his wife that he had traded his long ears for Scramble Squirrel's bushy tail, he decided to go out and learn how to climb a tree. "Surely," he muttered as he hopped along, for Nancy and Nick heard him, "I can climb now with those big ears off the top of my head and this nice tail to balance me." He hadn't noticed on his way out of his house that his tail had knocked over two chairs and pushed all the pictures crooked.
It kept Mrs. Bunny a whole day doing out the house again!

Ben decided on a hickory nut tree to make his attempt at climbing, but try as he would he couldn't get up any higher than a few inches.
"Shucks," he said finally. "This tail's no good! It's heavy and it pulls me down. Oh, goodness! There's Fleet the Fox. Funny I didn't hear him before. How did he ever manage to get so near? I'll have to hurry like everything now."

Off he scampered to an old tangle of briars he knew about. He knew, too,

"Oh, goodness! There's Fleet the Fox. Funny, I didn't hear him before."

if he'd get there he'd be pretty safe. He grinned a satisfied smile as he thought of something else too.

"Wasn't I wise to get rid of my ears, though?" he chuckled, running like anything. "They won't give me away now, as they used to, for they're safe on Scramble Squirrel's head."

He flopped into the thicket just in time, for Fleet was right at his heels.
But perhaps you've guessed what happened. The fox had completely forgotten all about his bushy tail which was sticking out behind him and Fleet Fox grabbed it and bit off a good sized piece.

"Ouch!" cried the bunny, shivering with fright, at his narrow escape. "I don't like this tail at all, and I want my ears back! I shall go and see Scramble tomorrow."

Nancy and Nick hurried back to Scrub-Up Land to tell Rubadub the fairymen.

PEEP INTO THE FUTURE

Once Great Britain prided herself upon being "Mistress of the Seas."
That was before the day of gasoline.
Now John Bull wants to be King of Oil.

Sir E. Mackay Edgar says Great Britain has obtained control of all oil fields outside the United States, and predicts that the time is coming soon when Americans will propel their automobiles and airplanes with the aid of British "gas."

Edgar argues that being king of oil will prove even more profitable than playing the title role of mistress of the seas. But, at this distance, it would appear that Britain was killing two birds with one stone by thus cornering the world's oil supply. Probably the ship of tomorrow, commercial or naval, must have oil or stay tied to the pier. The nation that has the fuel oil will not only drive your automobile but your ships as well.

Something better than politics for Congress to ponder.

In tabulating election returns in Mexico, do they count the votes or the casualties?

It seems strange that none of the warring factions in Germany think to use poison gas on one another.

It may be that Mars wouldn't answer our signal because some of our prices reached her first.

Confessions of a Bride
(Copyright 1920, by The Newspaper Enterprise Association)

"We have escaped so much that it wasn't humanly possible for us to survive more," the men seemed to say to each other. They looked at the sky and the sea, and the barometer and at Chrys, who was stretched, collapsed and unconscious, in the bottom of the boat. Then they regarded the friendly ship. Then they looked at me.

Women Waste so Many Words Over Foolish
Things is my Thought.

"I spoke without waiting for their question."
"Bob! I must go to him. I must save him!" "Take Chrys aboard the ship with you—go to Brazil—all of you.
But I will stay here. Now that there is oil, I can make the harbor alone. I can run this boat, I have done so many times. I will take the risk—alone."

"Bravo! Bravo!" called the captain of the freighter, but his applause seemed a bit insincere for he spoke earnestly to Travers in Spanish, and Travers translated his words.

"The captain says, Mrs. Lorimer, that you're taking a big chance. The storm may prove a hurricane. He agrees to put us aboard the first returning ship he meets. That may be tonight—within an hour—"

"If there's a storm, he can't put us aboard another ship. It may be two days before we can be transferred. By that time, what will have happened to Bob?"

"We'll all stick to our little boat, thank you, captain," called out Jordan Spence.

"Wireless to shore for us, please," called Travers.
And so the friendly freighter passed on and Travers got our engine to going, and soon we were riding waves which grew ever higher and higher, or were coasting down slopes of dark water which grew ever deeper and deeper while the atmosphere grew murkier.

Each wave coming toward us looked like the approach of our last adventure.
As it passed beneath us and then preceded us, we felt as if we had been resurrected from the grave. I lived a thousand years in the next few hours, for with each resurrection, I regretted the sacrifice I had permitted my good friends to make. I had left three persons besides myself risk their lives for Bob's sake. I had no right to permit such a sacrifice. I had been supremely selfish.

"This boat's a wonder. She floats like a chip," I heard Travers say.
It was supposed to be non-sinkable, I knew. Nevertheless I was glad to let the men strap a life preserver about me.

It was, after all, the coast guard that saved us. But being half drowned all of the time and unconscious part of the time, I do not know the details of our rescue.

"I came to" at the life saving station, learned that we were all alive, and then went comfortably off to sleep, so exhausted that I did not give a single thought to my husband.

When I waked up with the feeling that I had strength to stay awake, I found myself in a hotel room. A nurse was watching at my side.

"My clothes," I demanded.

"Madame's clothes were ruined by the salt water," she answered. "But the gentlemen have ordered everything—for both ladies—from the best stores.
Madame has but to select—"

I writhed with impatience. Women waste so many words over foolish things.

"Bring something—anything—quickly!" I exclaimed. "Where is Miss Lorimer?"

Chrys was in the next room and feeling well enough to talk. I didn't have any time to talk about the storm. It was enough that we were alive.

All I wanted was strength to get to the hacienda and will power to use as a substitute for strength. But first I had to have the details of what had happened at the hacienda before Chrys had come away.

FEEDING THE CHILD.

It is a mistake not to give the growing child a ration of milk with each meal of the day. And along with this there should be in proper proportion these articles of food that go to make up what may be called a well-chosen diet.

Experience has taught us that human beings thrive best on what is commonly called a mixed diet of animal and vegetable foods. It is from a diet of this kind that the body can most readily obtain the materials it needs for growth and repair of waste.

The common foods which contain and, therefore, will supply the necessary food elements are as follows:

Fruits and Vegetables—These include apples, berries, bananas, oranges, etc., spinach, turnips, tomatoes, melons, cabbage, green beans, peas, green corn and many others.
These supply the minerals needed for building the body and for keeping it in good working condition; they also supply needed acids which prevent constipation and serve other useful purposes.

Meats and Substitutes—These are the foods rich in protein. They include moderately fat meats, milk, poultry, fish, eggs, dried beans or peas and some of the nuts. They provide body-building materials.

Cereals—These are rich in the starches of fat producing material and some of them come near to being complete foods. However, it would

Former Dixon Man Subject of Write-Up

The Ben Franklin Monthly, a journal devoted to the printing trades for the month of May, contains an article which will be of interest to Dixon people who were acquainted with Olaf T. Gylleck, a former resident of this city. The article reads as follows:

The combination of printer and magician isn't a usual one, and to be successful in both roles is something to be proud of. At least that is the way those who know Olaf T. Gylleck, foreman of the printing department of The Challenge Machinery Company, Grand Haven, Mich., look at it. Mr. Gylleck, who, in addition to being foreman of the Challenge company's plant, is also head of the company's service department, lays claim to being—and has proven himself—a master magician. He ranks with professionals and spends his spare hours in bringing forth rabbits from other people's hats, and eggs from their ears, and in performing other strange feats. He is well-known throughout the country as an entertainer and has given performances in almost every state in the union.

ROCHELLE

Rochelle, May 18.—Adam did not wear a beard, according to the dictum of M. Terey, director of the Hungarian national art museum, who has eliminated the great ancestor's hirsute adornment in restoring Jordan's famous picture "Adam and Eve." The picture shows Adam looking at the apple and Eve listening to the serpent in the splendors of Eden. Examination of the canvass has shown the beard was not a part of the original picture but was painted on during the last century when beards were popular. Many objected to the beard because it made Adam look too much like the proverbial Bolshevik but this consideration did not enter into the decision of M. Terey.

Don't Let Lightning Get There First

In view of the abnormal cost of labor and material, the protection of property from Lightning is vitally important this year—even more important than insurance, since prevention of loss saves the property entirely, while insurance only partially repays and does not replace.

Shinn-Flat

Lightning Rods Prevent Lightning Losses

Lightning cannot be prevented, but it can be controlled, for Lightning can't strike if Shinn gets there first.

We are the representatives in this community of the well known Shinn System of Lightning Protection. It surely does prevent Lightning Losses. We give a Cash Bond to the owner of every building we protect guaranteeing that Lightning will not strike.

Ask for a copy of the book on Shinn-Flat, explaining the Cause and Control of Lightning. It's free.

NEWS FROM DIXON

The Y. M. C. A. tennis courts at the Assembly are rapidly beginning to look like the real thing. One court is now ready for play and if the weather permits the other will be in condition this week.

The boys of the "Y" will hike on Thursday afternoon starting at 4:30.

Advertisers Notice

Because of mechanical necessities and the fact that the shortage in print paper enforces a limit to the size of each issue of The Telegraph, it will be necessary for all display advertisements to be in this office not later than 5 p. m. on the afternoon previous to the day of publication. Almost daily it is necessary to reject advertisements. The ads eliminated are those that come in latest.

Classified advertisements should be in this office before 11 a. m. on the day of publication.

They will take their suppers and arrive home about 9:30. This will be the first hike the boys have pulled off at this hour but a big crowd and a big time are expected.

Plans are being completed for a grade school athletic meet to be given by the physical department of the Y of May 29. This meet will be for the boys in the grades only and will be divided into three classes according to weight: under 90 lbs, under 115 lbs. and over 115 lbs, so that the boys will compete against those of their weight only. Further details will be announced later.

S. D. & E. Can Now Sell Bunch of Bonds

(Special to the Telegraph)
Springfield, Ill., May 18.—The Illinois Public Utilities Commission has issued an order authorizing the Sterling, Dixon & Eastern Electric Railway Co. to issue first and refunding mortgage five per cent gold bonds to the amount of $22,000, approving the sale of the same bonds to the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., and authorizing the latter company to issue five per cent first and refunding mortgage bonds to the amount of $18,500.

Use of automobiles may be prohibited in Italy because of the extreme shortage of gasoline and the high rate of exchange.

Wash Skirts Takes on "That Well Dressed Look"

You can still be assured of "That Well-Dressed Look on hot summer days, because Wooltex Tailor-mades come in Tub-able materials too.

Cool voiles, sturdy gabardines and crisp linens and tricelines—Not just ordinary Tub Skirts but fine wash fabrics carefully tailored so they are tub proof.

Tailored by the same tailors that give that Well-Dressed look" to Wooltex Tailor-mades.

Women wear a tub skirt with a dainty blouse, but they are more careful about choosing the wash skirt than the blouse. She insists upon double shrunk cloth, boned and shrunk belt, wide hem and very first fashion. So she looks in the under belt to make sure that the tailors are the same as those that made her WOOLTEX TAILOR-MADE SUIT.

A BRIGHT SILK SKIRT IS THE "HANDIEST" THING WE KNOW OF

Can't you just see how very "Handy" and useful such a skirt of bright plaid would be for the hot summer months.

With a plain white blouse or sweater, it really makes a charming summer costume.

And as for colorings you can choose between saucy plaids of purple and gold, or blue and gold or it comes in just plain modest colors.

This Fantasie silk is so lovely in itself that it needs nothing but the smart little pocket and belt to adorn it. Made by the same tailors. We want you to come in and see these skirts.

Why Denim? Wanda Hawley's Wearing a Basket

Wanda Hawley-Realart Star wearing costume of woven straw and flowers

Every indication is that 1920 will go down in fashion history as a conspicuously "flower year." Of course blossoms gay or delicate have always played a more or less important part in woman's dress, but modern fabrics, modern methods of making perfect artificial flowers, and modern lavishness in dress and ornament have all combined to make flowers, flowers of silk, linen, or the wonderful ribbon flowers that the French make so faultlessly, flowers of beads, and real flowers are today used as smart adjuncts of milady's raiment more profusely than ever before.

and incidentally holds the basket on. The bodice is made of Georgette crepe, and is a demimute and inconspicuous part of this unusual costume.

The chief interest, of course, lies in the ornamentation, which consists of quantities of beautiful artificial flowers of all varieties which are tucked into the top of the "basket," filling in the panier-like openings at the side, and drooping gracefully down the skirt. Pansies, roses, geraniums, lilies, violets, lilacs and other flowers were used, and the effect is indescribably gay and unusual. As for comfort, Miss Hawley declares that her basket gown is just as easy to walk or dance in as any other ball frock which she owns.

While it cannot safely be prophesied that the basket frock will ever become a common mode, it is interesting to know what the mind of the modiste conceives for these luxurious little motion picture stars. It is only fair to state that the basket gown is one

HOW TO GROW FOOD IN YOUR GARDEN

HOW TO GROW FOOD IN YOUR GARDEN
By W. F. Fechner,
Champion War Garden Director of America.

Insects and How to Combat Them.
It would only confuse the average person to go into detailed description of the multitude of insects that from time to time make their appearance, and to give specific treatment for each. There are, however, broadly speaking, two classes of insects and all belong to the one class or the other. One class is commonly called "biting" or "chewing" insects. They eat the foliage and sometimes the fruits of the plant. In this class belong "potato bugs," "cabbage worms" most "caterpillars," etc.

These insects are readily disposed of by the use of arsenate of lead, this is a poison, and great care must be used in handling it. It is best applied with a good spray pump. Directions how to use it are on the package and should be carefully followed. There are many, and among them myself, who often find it convenient and effective to use "Paris green". Of this take one spoonful of Paris green and 10 spoonfuls slacked lime, mix thoroughly, then empty on a square piece of cheesecloth, take up by the four corners so as to form a bag, go through your rows and gently shake the improvised bag over and among the plants.

Whenever these preparations are used on mustard, lettuce, cabbage, etc., great care must be exercised to wash the vegetables very thoroughly before using.

Sucking Insects
These insects do not eat the leaves of plants, but with a minute sharp snout which they force through the skin of the leaf, they suck the life juice out of the plants. The treatment just described for biting insects therefore does not kill these insects, and other remedies must be applied.

The greater part of insects belonging to this class are soft-bodied aphides. These insects vary in size from a needle-point up to larger than a pin-head, and are usually formed in great masses on underside of the leaves. Any preparation that does not hurt the plant but will kill the minute pest by body contact must be used, and for this purpose we know nothing that will give better results than the tobacco extract preparations such as "nikoteen," or black leaf 40. Follow closely directions on the package. Among the last named class of insects are a few that have a hard shell body and such can not be killed with these preparations. For these hand-picking must be resorted to.

Special Steels add Life to the

MAXWELL

These steels are the product of the highly developed Maxwell laboratories, where steels have been studied, analyzed and tested for years.

They are made to Maxwell's own formulae and enable the Maxwell to stand punishment that few cars can meet successfully.

They lessen the task of the engine and make it more responsive, quicker in action and a delight to handle.

These are some of the virtues which have won friends for the Maxwell in ever increasing numbers and give it a longer life than many cars of higher price.

Today there are approximately 400,000 Maxwell's on the world's highways. The year 1920 will add 100,000 more.

A Home To Fit Every Pocketbook

IF YOU ARE RENTING, and are enjoying (?) that sensation of uncertainty as to how long it will be before the house is sold and you will have to move to goodness only knows where—come in and see us. We're the easiest people you ever saw to get up to—you don't have to hand us oranges on the end of a fish-pole. Your only regret will be that you didn't get acquainted with us long before.

Speaking of the scarcity of houses to rent reminds us of the experience of one lady who looked up just 48 leads before she found one she could get, and then she had to take a place and let the old rooster who owned it retain a room or two—just think of all that racing around and telephoning and then not being able to get a whole house for her family. Moral: See Sterling," and buy a home and thus save a lot of time and trouble.

Will be in the office on Sundays from 10 to 12 in the forenoon and from 3 to 4 in the afternoon, to take care of people who can't get away from their work during the week.

No trouble to show property. We have one or more skunk-barouches on duty days, nights and Sundays.

FORMER DIXON PASTOR DELIVERED SERMON IN NEW YORK ON EASTER

Dr. J. Fort Newton's Sermon Published in Church Paper

Let us go farther, and ask as to the basis of a hope that opens so fair a vista. In respect to the after-life, as of the life that now is, faith is the first necessity and the last. There is, strictly speaking, no such thing as demonstration in this dim world. We do not live by knowledge, but by faith, and faith, as George MacDonald tells us, is not yielding; it is force. Huxley dared to trust his moral instincts as over against a natural order which he held to be non-normal; that was faith. The highest faith and hopes of humanity are not only more revealing, but they are more trustworthy than our knowledge. Whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away, but now abideth the ancient, hard, heroic faith of a man. It is no other than the voice of the universe speaking in him telling him what the world is and what he is. Once we grasp this fact, the truths of life and faith take on a new aspect of validity. The universe which bred these hopes in us and caused them to persist, does not create desires to which there is no answer. Born out of the heart of nature, our faiths and dreams are a part of account and prophecy which the universe gives of itself, a response to something real which evokes and sustains them. How vividly Ian MacLaren stated this in one of his Drumtochy stories. Margaret Howe, who was "dearer to the heart of things than any one in the glen," said to gentle Lily Grant, "Dinna be ashamed of yir dreams, Lily; they'll come true some day, for ye canna think better than God will do." The most wonderful thing on this earth is personal love. However it may be analyzed, it is a fundamental reality, and its prophecy has a right to be heard. Never is it more glorious than when it confronts its old enemy death. There is a scene in the Zangwill drama, "The Next Religion," which may help us to see the wonder and prophecy of a love that is stronger than death. Stephen Trame is a teacher of the religion of law, a gospel of science whose glacial truths, he holds, will breed a sturdier faith than the old tropical theology. His wife does not share his arctic religion, with its far-off frozen God, which brushes the hope of personal immortality aside as a mere sentiment. Through the generosity of a disciple, a temple is built, with colored windows, in which Mazzini, Emerson, and Swinburne appear like saints. The son, Wilfred, has written the music for the dedication, seeking to capture the melody of the old faith and set it to alien words. Just before the service of dedication begins, the son is brutally killed by a fanatic in the vestibule, and his body lies on the floor, covered with flowers from the altar. On one side stands his father with his cold religion of law; on the other his mother, white and magnificent in her faith in religion of love. Stephen, seeking to console her, says, "But he is not dead, Mary; he will live in his music and his—" "Stop your words," cries the mother. Can I embrace his music and feel its heart beating against mine? Will it give me a kiss for kiss? There must be people of all ages in heaven. Yes, that is why children die—that heaven may not lack little ones and so be less heaven. Is there not time enough and space enough and power enough to set all these blunders straight? Are there not stars enough, universes enough? Or do you think I cannot wait a million years and journey a million miles if only to hear Wilfred say, "Mother? I tell you that the great love world will never take your religion, and that even if you delude all male humanity the mothers would rise up and tear it to pieces." There speaks a voice from the heart of life itself the mother voice of the world, more eloquent and more authentic than any logic. It comes from the depths, fathomless by reason, and it rises to the heights. It proclaims the enduring reality of love between mother and son to the end of things. When elemental realities of life where religion has its roots, and philosophy its foundations, fidelity here is sanity. Our human world, with its light and color, its warmth of love, its sanctity of friendship, its fondness of comradeship, is the fairest flower of the universe in time, it has enduring value. It is the nursery of love, beauty, character, and hope. At bottom it is a question of values, and human life has value for God. He made it. He loves it. He conserves it. Man is at his highest in fellowship, and the love of life, which makes him most like God, are prophetic beyond words. Brief at its longest, broken at its best, in jeopardy every hour amid the perils of earthly life, love affirms and claims its own promise. Every argument for the reunion of those who walked together here and in the light of love learned a faith which defies death. Our real difficulty lies, perhaps, in the fact that we are unable to imagine the condition of the life beyond, the less so in these days when so much of the old scenery of faith has faded. Try as we may, we can not picture another world as it is, save as a glorified vision of the world that now is—life without weariness, love without sorrow, amid the living green of rustling woods and the glint of happy waters. But that need be no difficulty at all. If we had no experience of a world like this we should a world as contradictory, if not inconceivable. Nor must we make our imagination the measure of the love and power of God. For my part, the vision of God in Christ is enough, and the assurance grows that the reality it has in its keeping will surpass the dreams we all have dreamed, when we wake from the dream of life. Hitherto a fine instinct has kept Christian thinkers from being too God, He made it. He loves it. He conserves it. Man is at his highest in fellowship, and the love of life, which makes him most like God, are prophetic beyond words. Brief at its longest, broken at its best, in jeopardy every hour amid the perils of earthly life, love affirms and claims its own promise. Every argument for the reunion of those who walked together here and in the light of love learned a faith which defies death. Our real difficulty lies, perhaps, in the fact that we are unable to imagine the condition of the life beyond, the less so in these days when so much of the old scenery of faith has faded. Try as we may, we can not picture another world as it is, save as a glorified vision of the world that now is—life without weariness, love without sorrow, amid the living green of rustling woods and the glint of happy waters. But that need be no difficulty at all. If we had no experience of a world like this we should a world as contradictory, if not inconceivable. Nor must we make our imagination the measure of the love and power of God. For my part, the man hearts than to-day for the touch of vanished hands and the sound of voices that are hushed. Millions of young men have fallen in the war—the gay, the gallant, and the true-hearted, the echo of whose laughter is still in our ears—doubtless dead because they died so young, and a great heart-ache follows the evening sun around the world. It is profound. It is pathetic. There are hours, there are days, when it is poignant almost beyond human endurance. What wonder, then, that many seek not only communion, but communication, with the dead! There are those who tell us that they have been authentic, and as to that I make no question—only, the majority have not been so blessed. Should God grant me such an unveiling, I would thank him with that dumb joy for which words were never made; but he has not done so. Nor can I bring myself to seek it through others, much less by the methods employed which are open to doubt and which make a man discredit his own senses. No, no, Spiritualism is not spirituality, and it is in the fellowship of the Spirit of Christ, in whom there is no darkness, no distance, no death, that I find consolation and consecration. What we want is not simply the bare fact of survival, but something that reveals itself in a finer grace of character and probably regard the very idea of such shows itself to be true in the exaltation and amelioration of life. Wilfred Letts has set the key by which we may be as heroic in our loneliness as our heroes were in their sacrifice. "Because you live, though out of sight and reach, I will, so help me God, live bravely too."

Taking the road with laughter and gay speech, Alert, intent to give all its due,"

One word more. If we keep alive through long years of separation our love of those gone before, as every true heart does, then, on our side at least, reunion is prepared for. And love is the sovereign reality. Like the disciples of Jesus on the lake at dawn, we may not know them at first when we meet again, but there will be tokens—dear, delightful, well-remembered things, all the more vivid in that clearer light—to tell us that "life is ever lord of death, and love can never lose its own." So let us believe; so let us live out our little day
